

How to do a statement wall with water colours

The statement wall is definitely having a moment right now with bold accent colours, a modern wallpaper revival, and chic wall murals for all. So, what's the latest design trend to join this growing list? That's right - it's good old-fashioned water colour! There are so many reasons to love this look, like the many options you have for achieving it. The water colour wall is also surprisingly chic when done the right way, like in a monochromatic palette or with colourful bursts that are tightly clustered. The key is to keep the water colour confined to roughly one-third of your statement wall, and pair with serious, grown-up furniture pieces to keep the look in balance.
